

Cultivating Creativity

Inspired by Botanical Art on View

Summer Art Sessions @ the Woodson

Summer Art Sessions July 9 – 12, 2019

Inspired by the summer exhibition, Botanical Art Worldwide: America's Flora, summer art session participants explore plants as sources of inspiration, natural art materials, and organic ephemera. Participants will experiment with natural dyes to form floral designs on fabric, layer leaves to create graphic solar prints, and design botanical still lifes to create mixed-media illustrations.

Tuesday and Wednesday, July 9 & 10
9 am – Noon

Botanical Buds: Ages 5-8

Time outdoors sourcing materials for nature-inspired art projects is enhanced by time in the Museum's galleries and classroom studio where participants will create botanical-themed projects.

Fee: $25 for Museum members
$35 for non-members

Thursday and Friday, July 11 & 12
9 am – Noon

Horticultural Happenings: Ages 9-12

Learning about the uses and variations of familiar flora, participants observe artwork on view and cultivate creativity while re-imagining the artistic potential of plants.

Fee: $25 for Museum members
$35 for non-members
